Riverwood rising junior chosen to represent at Hugh O’Brian Youth Leadership Seminar

Riverwood International Charter School’s rising junior Chandler McCleskey (Class of 2020) recently was chosen to represent his school at the Hugh O’Brian Youth Leadership (HOBY) Seminar at Agnes Scott College on June 1 – 3. HOBY is a non-profit youth leadership development program founded in 1958 for high school scholars by the late actor and humanitarian Hugh O’Brian. One high school sophomore from every high school in the United States, referred to as an “ambassador”, is welcomed to a state or regional HOBY seminar, a unique leadership training, service-learning, and motivational-building experience within a global perspective. In each of the seminars, students are offered the opportunity to attend the World Leadership Congress. Chandler joined over 200 other HOBY ambassadors from Northwest Georgia. These ambassadors are students who already demonstrate leadership in their schools and communities and innovation, and hopefully develop a lifelong dedication to improving the lives of others.
