

Dr. Kelley Carroll is Executive Vice President of Ambulatory Care Services/Chief of Ambulatory Medicine at Atlanta's Grady Health System. Dr. Carroll joined the health system in 2017, after having served as Assistant Chief of Staff for Ambulatory Care at Harris Health System in Houston, Texas.

At Grady, Carroll directly oversees all ambulatory operations, as well as Grady employed physicians, advanced practice professionals, nurses, and clinicians. In addition, she works with the medical school partners, key health system divisions and executive leaders to ensure timely, efficient, high quality, patient centered ambulatory care. She is passionate about improving the health of the Atlanta community.

A 2002 honors graduate of George Washington University School of Medicine, Dr. Carroll completed her residency in family medicine at the University of Texas McGovern Medical School in Houston. From there, she then joined the Family and Community Medicine faculty as an assistant professor of family medicine. In 2013, she attend the Harvard School of Public Health for healthcare leadership training. She received a certificate in physician leadership from University of Texas School of Public Health in 2015.